MANAGER COMMENTARY

January was mixed for global markets, with the newswires dominated by Donald Trump's inauguration as US president. Investor enthusiasm for the new Trump administration cooled towards the end of the month, with its initial policy focus proving to be more protectionist and less supportive of growth than hoped.

Evenlode rose +0.7% compared to a rise of +0.6% for the IA UK All Companies sector and a fall of -0.3% for the UK market. The strongest contributors to the fund's return were Diageo, Burberry and Pagegroup, all of which were helped by positive trading updates. Diageo produced half year organic sales growth of +5% and healthy cash generation (accompanied by a dividend increase of +5%) whilst Burberry and Page continue to generate resilient performance and good cash flow despite mixed end markets. The most negative contributors were AstraZeneca and Sage Group. Astra underperformed along with the broader pharmaceutical sector as uncertainty regarding future US healthcare policy continued. Sage announced first quarter organic sales growth of +5% (slightly lower than expected, but management reiterated guidance for the full year).

There were no major changes to the portfolio over the month. However, at the margin we continued to top up some of Evenlode's most resilient and repeat-purchase holdings, (Unilever, Diageo, Sage, Compass etc.) which have underperformed in recent months but continue to offer very good long-term dividend growth potential in our view.

It has been a busy few weeks for company results, and approximately two thirds of the Evenlode portfolio has updated the market since the start of the year. Despite a very patchy backcloth for the global economy (both by sector and geography) we are reassured by the fundamental progress that the aggregate portfolio continues to make.
